The great secret in raising wool is to get a heavy fleece of fine quality, till within a few years past such a thing was considered impossible, and all practical Manufacturers felt that the best goods must be made from the shortest staple. Now a long fine staple has been proved to produce as good a cloth as any other, but it requires a different Machine to work it. The best work for a grower to attempt producing is weight 2 3/4 lbs fine fleece.

The best blood I know to breed from are the Flocks of Chas B Smith

To make Orang Co Butter Set the milk in large pan or vessels till it becomes thick in a cool place. The sweeter the vessels and cooler the place in Summer the better, in Winter warm the room with a Stove. Churn the whole milk. Wash the Butter in cold water untill the water derives no milky appearance from the butter then salt it sufficiently for-use. Within twenty four hours after salting work out every drop of the pickle then pack it away in tight sweet vessels covering the butter when the vessel is filled. with fine dry salt

Butter should be packed tight in new well soaked sweet oaken firkins for market, or in Stone Jars Butter prepared as before described will keep sweet for a year or more.
Boiling water will aid in the churning but avoid useing too much.
In Summer add plenty of cold water to the milk before churning. The slower the churning the better Rules given by a lady of That kind of news which we most like to hear of others, affords the best possible index to the true character of our own hearts. John Brown

The dependance of the rich & powerful illustrated; or a lesson of humility.
If all others were as well off in the world as ourselves, they would be as fully employed as we, could not perform our work, & of course we should be obliged to do it ourselves & our worldly possessions must be very limited
